Burbridge made some remarks on the arrest of Judge B., but I cannot well recoluent

Gen. Hueston sworn for defense-Soon after Gen. B. returned from Indianapolis had a talk with him in regard to Judge Bullitt's arrest. He said it was on account of his connection with the Sons of Liberty—a treasonable organization—and would try him before a military court, and, if found guilty, would hang him quick. I do not remember if I talked with Judge B. afterwards. Heard that Judge B. was sent to Memphis and sent back by Gen. Washburne. They tried to arrest him but he went off. This is general rumor.

After this I heard he had been sent to Memphis. He returned and took his seat as presiding justice during December 6th and 7th. He made some remaks that by some exchange he had been allowed to return. Heremained until 24th 1864. The reason of his going away the second time I only heard from hearsay. He has leased a farm for one year as I hear. He leased his swn farm in Jefferson. He has not left the State longer than the time necessary to insure his safety from military authorities. FOR STATE TREASURER,

Of Madison County.

J. WESLEY MALONE. The reader will be edified in the perusal of the epistle of Mr. J. Wesley Malone, in our paper of to-day. There have been against an honerable returned soldier, nearly as many exploring expeditions for the ultima thule of rebel insolence and effrontery as for the Northwest passage. 'Tis a pity that Webster's great Dictionary appeared prematurely. The English language sadly needs descriptive words for the deeds of rebels. Those words that fit the crimes of other men as though they were made for one another, are altogether too diminutive for the atrocities of rebels. The attempt to cover them with the words that describe the vileness of other men is something like an attempt to cover ten acres of land with a square yard of cloth. The words insolent, impudent, sauciness are utterly impoverished in clothing rebel deeds. Effrontery may convey some idea of a "gross and public exhibition of shamelessness," but the word is beggared in attempting to convey the full measure of rebel work of this kind.

We think that Mr. J. Wesley Malone is a contesting racer for the honors of sublime rebel effrontery. But before entering upon considerations of this kind, we beg leave to make an essential disclaimer. From the salutation, "My dear Sir," with which Mr. Malone addresses us, some innocent soul may imagine that he is an acquaintance of ours. If any one is thus caught, we desire to undeceive him. We have not the misfortune of an acquaintance with this "honerable soldier of the Confederate States army," this "bone fide citizen of the United States Government." It may be a sad described by the Militia Law. Mr. L. B. Thomas and Mr. Dulin proving, in able speeches, that the repealing of this bill would save the State at least half a million dollars a year. After a long debate the bill was finally repealed. salutation, "My dear Sir," with which Mr. States Government." It may be a sad defect in our experience that we have never met with this precious specimen of a rebel, Confederate, "gentlemen," as he spells it. The word gentleman cannot have in the very nature of things, any very precise meaning among a republican people and in the mouths of rebels its common use in the mouths of rebels its common use runs into carricature. Yet, they may use it setting forth that as the negroes who were authoritatively, but other people should drop it. George Barrington, the notorious pick-pocket, went constantly by the name of "gentleman George. Geerge the Fourth of England, that aggregation of every mean, treacherous, and villainous outrage, called himself the first gentleman in Europe. Old Roger Aschan, in his "Schole Master" says:

"Some in France, which will needs be gentlemen whether men will or no, and have more gentleshippe in their hat than in their head, be at deadly feud with both learning and honesty.

Spenser, in his view of Ireland, says of the Irish of his day:

If he can derive himself from the head of any sept, then he holdeth himself a gentle man, and thereupon scorneth to work or use any hard labor, but henceforth becom-eth either an horse-boy or a stocah to some kerne, inuring himself to his weapon, and to the gentlemanly trade of stealing, as they

Roger Ascham and the author of the Faery Queen are good authorities for the Faery Queen are good authorities for the use of words, and the rebels may be permitted to appropriate the word gentleman to themselves. Honest men can do without it very well. As we have not the acquaintance of Mr. J. Wesley Malone, we are not prepared to say anything of his are not prepared to say anything of his are not prepared to say anything of his claim to having been "a gentlemen all his life." But there is one thing of which we are sure. J. Wesley Malone is not a descendant of that "Widow Malone" with whom Frank Webber decorated General Dashwood's ball, of whom the song says:

But so modest was Mrs. Malone

'Twas known

No one could see her alone
Ohone.
Let them ogle or sigh
They could ne'er catch her eye,
So bash ul this Widow Malone,
So bashful this Widow Malone.

J. Wesley will not die by an excessive stock of modesty. This Mr. J. Wesley Malone, like hundreds of other whipped traitors, is cavorting rather extravagantly, and he and his cronies should have some sense bored into their stupid brains. He and the rest of his gang are traitors, walking here in Kentucky with a rope's end dangling about their treasonable necks. They are creatures that are merely permitted to drag their miserable lives along for a season, whether these lives shall be indefinitely prolonged, depends, to some extent on their good behavior. They may feel the drawing of the halter speedily, if their rebel insolence becomes ostentatious. In the eyes of the Constitution of the United States, by the majesty of the laws and in the judgment of all true men and women, Mr. J. Wesley Malone, is a vile traitor, who deserves

We do not know how this respited traitor has become a "bone fide citizen of the United States Government," to use his own choice language. The Supreme Court of the United States, according to the Attorney General, has decided that Malone and in thunder tones demand and compel their company have no home in the loyal States, and the Secretary of War has ordered the enforcement of the judgment. At best Mr.
Malone is a tolerated interloper in Kencial and social world, isolated, derided and Gloves, tucky and he may make himself intolerable. We feel some confidence that Congress has not passed a special act for J. Wesley Malone, and he should bear in mind that the State of Kentucky rates him and his fellow Kentucky traitors as low as she does the negroes, so far as suffrage is taken against the Administration was well Combs. concerned. An apology is due, but we are not in the quandary of Davy Crockett in his affair with the baboon and the Tennessee Congressman. Davy was struck with the resemblance of the baboon to the Congressman and commenced pointing out the similitudes. While in mid volley, Davy happened to turn his head slightly and suppose taken against the Administration was well calculated to encourage the rebels in their designs. Their speeches show that without slavery they want no government. What have Harding and Mallory done in Congress but make rebel-like speeches, and thereby prejudice the government against Kentucky and do her a great injury? No honest man can deny this.

Our Frankfort Letter. Bullitt Trial--Militia Law--An Old Ac-

[Special Correspondence of the Union Press.] FRANKFORT, May 29. The Bullit trail was resumed this morning, and the defense tried to prove that his leaving the State was occasioned by Gen. Burbridge making use of the remark, "that as he heard that Judge Bullitt was a member of a treasonable association, he would order his arrest, and if caught, hang him?" This seems to be their principal. him." This seems to be their principal point, and it is curious to note the fact, what an amount of cross-examination this little

In the Senate a bill which has been presented for eight years steadily, and as steadily passed over was brought up. The bill is to give relief to Geo. W. Mr. Owens, recruited in Kentucky were quartered in different parts of the State, and proved a sort of annoyance and irritation to their former owners and the citizens generally, that the Governor be requested to urge the

A certain J. Wesley immortalized his name by denouncing slavery as "the sum TWO THOUSAND HORSES & MARES. of all villainies." But this J. We know exactly what the Union men of Logan county think of your conduct: Base and infamous!

Louisville Hospitality.

[For the Union Press.] You hope those inhospitable, narrow-minded, short-sighted, penny-wise, nig-gardly, and ungallant Councilmen who redeath at the hands of the hangman. He is simply respited, the inexorable execution Councilmen and their ladies, will resign. So do I. Your comments on the character and consequences of their conduct are just and practical. It is indeed sickening to lightened self-idterest and the common deretirement to the befitting obscurity whence they came. Louisville must quickly have spurned, and degraded to a one-horse country village. MARCO.

COMMISSINER OULD.—It now appears that distance. Davy at once declared that an apology was due, and that if any one would satisfy him as to which of the two, the baboon or the Congressman it was due, he would make it on the spot. We admit that we owe an amende to the African race for even seeming to insinuate that the Legislature of Kentucky rates the negroes as the equals of the rebels, the traitorous brood.

GEN, R. W. JOHNSON,-This gallant Kentuckian has just been breveted Major General to date from December 16, 1864, for "gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Nashville." Gen. Johnson is one of the best officers that Kentucky has ever furnished. Unassuming in his manner, he has not appeared before the public as often as some others, nor as often as his merits deserved. In the beginning of the rebelion he was commissioned Colonel of the 3d Kentucky cavalry, which regiment he disciplined and made one of the best in the service. He was promoted to Brigadier General and made many brilliant fights in command of a brigade. In the battles around Nashville he commanded all the cavalry under General Thomas. He won bright laurels in the memorable fights around the Rock City, and was continually harrassing Hood's rear. For this valuable service he was recommended for promotion by Gen. Thomas. Never were the stars more richly deserved, nor never did they grace the shoulders of a braver man than Gen. R. W. Johnson.

THE ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.—Every railroad and line out of Louisville connects with the great "Broad Gauge" route to New York, Boston and Eastern cities. The mailboats and the People's Line of boats connect with the Atlanic and Great Western at Cincinnati. The Jeffersonville railroad connects by the way of Seymour and the Ohio and Mississipp railroad. The New Albany and Chicag Railroad makes connections by the way of Mitchell and the Ohio and Mississippi road. Passengers for the East will be much pleased with this new route—the wide and luxurious cars, the splendid eat-ing houses and the few changes, (only one between Cincinnati and New York,) are comforts that all appreciate, and they will make the route very popular. This route to Pittsburg and Philadelphia, via Mansfield, where the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad crosses and connects the Atlantic and Great Western, is the shortest and quickest one from Louisville to these points, and we would recommend it to our readers. We learn that the Atlantic and Great Western are about to start a fast freight or express line, which will deliver goods from New York in Louisville in less time than our merchants have been accustomed to receive tomed to receive them. The road certainly has the facilities of doing it, and our mer-chants will gladly avail themselves of its Proclamation by the President of the United States of Americe: Whereas, the 4th section of the 4th article of the Constitute of the United States, declares that the United States of America, while the United States of America, the United States of Ameri to Blenker's staff, but subsequently, while under sentence of death for desertion, escaped to the rebel service, and was em-ployed as draughtsman for General J. E. B. Stuart. The wanted to show there was n such secret meeting as Non Steneke had de-scribed in the camp of the 2d Va. regiment, at which Booth was alleged to have been present and the assassination of Mr. Linoln discussed.

Gen. Wallace, member of the court, said application made, which was in writing, application bitter asperson on the witness n his absence, and was inflammatory in its character. It was discreditable to the paries concerned, and too offensive to the court o be placed on record.

Mr. Campbell disclaimed any intention on the part of the counsel to reflect upon the court. The only object was to impeach the testimony of a witness.

The court voted not to put the paper on record, but was perfectly willing, as was expressed the other day by the counsel for the accused, should call witnesses to impeach Von Steneke's testimony.

Mr. Aiken said they had Gen. Edward Johnson, late of the rebel army, and members of his staff, to prove that no such meeting as Von Steneke supremented technique. ing as Von Steneke represented took place in the camp of the 2d Viginia regiment, at which Booth was said to be present, having for its object the assassination of President Lincoln. Witnesses were examined by defense to impeach those who testified against Dr. Mudd.

The prosecution called Mr. Hyatts, who testified to meeting Dr. Blackburn at Toronto in December, 1862, and knew that Horonto in December, 1862, and knew that he was in the service of the rebels; that Blackburn took witness to a private room and asked him if he was willing to go on an expedition. He told him he would make $100,000, and receive more glory than Lee. Witness consented, and received a letter from Blackburn dated 10th of May last at Hayana, stating that he would arrest last at Havana, stating that he would arrive at Halifax, and witness made his way there and perfected arrangements for the distribution of the infected clothing, and bringing trunks to New York and Philadelphia. Blackburn stated that his object was to destroy the Federal Army; that the clothing has been infected with yellow fever, and that other parties were engaged with him in infecting goods amounting to a million dollars worth with that disease and the small-pox. Witness understood that the clothing in the valise which was sent to President Lincoln was infected with both diseases. When witness returned to Hamilton he met Clay and Halcombe, who congratulated him on his success, and tele-graphed to Dlackburn, who came down next night, and when witness told him what he had done, he said it was all right, as bag No. 2 hod gone to Washington, and he was sure it would kill at 60 Blackburn said Thompson would pas him, and he went to Thompson, who stated that he would be paid when they they head that the goods had been delivere according to instructions. Witness showed the letter structions. Witness showed the letter from Wall & Co., when Thompson gave vitness $50 on account.

Mr. Davis, residing at Dr. Mudd's as a aborer, testified: Mudd was only away from home three nights since the 9th of January; once, the 26th of January, to G. H. Gardner's party, with his family; once to Washington, 23d March, with Gardner and with L. Gardner, and third time also o Washington; saw him every day except those three; never saw Surratt or Booth; never heard Surratt's, Booth's or Harrold's names mentioned in the family; witness went for Mudd on the 15th of April, to his (Mudd's) father; told him there were some soldiers at the house who wanted to see him; nothing was said about Booth; never heard Mudd express any disloyalty; saw two horses at the houses; didn't see men, but heard one had broken his leg.

Julian Bloss, (colored) formerly residing at Mudd's testified: Never knew of any Confederate officers or soldiers being about the house; never saw Surratt, Andrew Gwynn or Ben Gwynn at the house, or heard their names mentioned; Mudd was very kind to all of his slaves; He never struck Mary Simms that I know of. Mary Simms is not agreat truth teller, because she has told lies on me. The colored folks generally think her a liar. The same was the case of Milor Simms. Davis was regarded by Toombs as a complete failure, who was wildly squandering the resources of the people on his favorites, and their only salvation was in his over throw.

Toombs did not think much more of Gen. Lee than he did of Jeff., and the enlistment of negroes to fight for the Confederacy, which he considered a disgrace that must lead to the most fatal consequences, is characterized as a piece of imbecile stupid ity as well as treachery to the cause, well orthy of Davis and Lee.

Toombs concludes by saying we can win the fight if we can get rid of Davis. If not

May 11th, stating that in the existing state of civil war in America and the uncertainty as to its continuance, it appears to Her Majesty's Government that the time has arrived for ceasing to enforce so much of orders given in the letter of January 31st, 1862, requiring belligerent vessels to leave British ports within 24 hours, and restricting supplies to actual requirements.

The various custom collectors of all ports had been notified of these modifications.
The Times, of the 18th, in its city article says: Some disappointment was also felt at the tone of the proclamation of President Johnson pronouncing Jeff. Davis and other Americans to have been accomplices in the recent murder; a charge which, without such proof as has rarely been accumulated in any case, will not be enter-tained for an instant by any who show, as all Englishmen do, the conviction of Se-ward and the late President Lincoln, that assassination is a crime repugnant to the

The Daily Telegraph says, not many days ago we expressed the belief that President Johnson would have chosen between the policy of Butler and the policy of Grant; already the choice has been made, and it is to our thinking disastrous and in sensate.

The Star says, the most exaggerated reports have been in circulation, as the policy of the United States towards Great Britain, Canada, France and Mexico. It would be only just to take the policy of the United States Government from itself, or from its acknowledged organs, but it has suited the purpose of the interested operators to accept instead of, wild representations of newspapers that are unrecognized and disavowed.

USE THE COOT VENT .- The cause of most of the coort very.—The cause of most of the complaints like the following: "I want some good ink; the last you sold me was not worth a cent," or "it got so thick I could not use it," arises from the fact that in pulling the cork it is broken by the cork-screw, or dug from the bottle with a knife, and the bottle left without a cork, or with a piece of one, in a heated office, in some corner on the floor, to evaporate and Appeal for Relief.

To the Ministers and Congregations of Re-ligious Worship in Kentucky.

FRIENDS OF HUMANITY: The dreadful FRIENDS OF HUMANITY: The dreadful scourge of war having multiplied thousands of victims of suffering and want, we are impelled in their behalf to solicit means for their relief. The managers of the Kentucky branch, have long since vigilantly and successfully labored to this end. They have ministered to the sick and wounded on the field and in the hospital; kept in good order a home for passing soldiers in the city of Louisville; they have founded and sustained a comfortable Refuges Hospital and sustained a comfortable Refugee Home where thousands of women and children, sent back from the war districts homele helpless and moneyless, and temporarily fed till homes can be secured.

These burthens have been cheerfully borne, and the sufferers relieved with no extensive assistance from the people of our State beyond our immediate vicinity. We therefore the more earnestly appeal to each minister and through them and their address to every congregation and individual in the State to contribute funds and forward the same by mail or express to Mr. Arthur Peter, our treasurer, at Louisville. They will be thankfully received, duly receipted for, faithfully applied and fully reported in the city papers and Sanitary Reporter. Will not every minister and congregation forward a response to this call? Kentuckians, you who have been proverbial for your hospitality, shall the wasted and ematiated forms of your sick soldiers, and the unclosinister and through them and their adforms of your sick soldiers, and the unclosed wounds of your suffering brave remain, after war ceased unprovided for? Shall the victims of war, women and children, widows and orphans, calling for morsels of bread, go famishing in our midst while so many have enough and to savery and oread, go lamishing in our midst while so many have enough and to spare, and perhaps fare sumtuously every day; sure not, you can and will prevent it. Is it not appropriate on the day of our national humiliation and prayer to connect therewith our deeds of charity for the suffering, and thus attest our sincerity.

Will every minister read this appeal to his congregation, then from Mathew 25th chapter, 34th verse to the close, and receive their contribution?
